Preface

"One imperative for our collective success is in-country technical assistance. Countries require TA so that they can achieve their targets to prevent and treat AIDS, TB and malaria, with the help of finance from the Fund and others. This support must be sourced broadly:

- Multilaterals have a strong role to play...[to] ensure development linkages at the country level, ...mobiliz[e] greater involvement by local business and trade unions, [and] ... coordinat[e] this response, both globally and with the range of stakeholders at the country level.
- Bilateral support is equally critical. Bilateral programs work on the ground to support countries and their priorities comprehensively. This is necessary to ensure that our funding is not vertical, but supportive of improved health systems. ...
- NGOs and the private sector can also – and must – provide technical assistance. NGOs use modest funds to maximum effect, and they can guide others on how to manage funds and leverage capacity. The private sector in-country represents an incredible opportunity...[for] implementing ARV workplace programs, ... teach[ing] others about information management and patient tracking systems, ...[and] help[ing] maximize the value of funds going to mass media campaigns."

– Richard Feachem, Executive Director of the Global Fund, at the Fund's June 2003 board meeting

This Aidspan publication is one of five free Aidspan guides to be produced during 2004 for Global Fund applicants and recipients, as follows:

- The Aidspan Guide to Obtaining Global Fund-Related Technical Assistance (Released 11 January 2004)
- The Aidspan Guide to Applying to the Global Fund (Due second half of January 2004)
- The Aidspan Guide to Starting Implementation of a Global Fund Grant (Due second quarter 2004)
- The Aidspan Guide to Building and Running an Effective CCM (Due second quarter 2004)
- The Aidspan Guide to Procurement and Supply Management for Recipients of Global Fund Grants (Due second quarter 2004)

All five Guides are due for completion prior to the Bangkok International AIDS Conference in July 2004, and it is hoped that they will feature in some skills-building and/or satellite sessions at that conference.

These Guides are being produced by Aidspan because no larger organization has come forward to produce them. The Global Fund itself is too over-worked and too short-staffed to be able to develop such materials.

Downloads

To download a copy of any of these Guides, go to www.aidspan.org/guides. If you do not have access to the web but you do have access to email, send a request to guides@aidspan.org specifying which of the currently-available Guides you would like to be sent as attachments to an email.

Aidspan does not have the resources to produce or distribute printed copies of these Guides.

Aidspan

Aidspan is a small US-based non-governmental organization (NGO) that works to promote increased support for and effectiveness of the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria (the Global Fund). Aidspan also publishes the Global Fund Observer (GFO) newsletter, an independent email-based source of news, analysis and commentary about the Global Fund. GFO is sent to 4,500 readers in over 150 countries. To receive GFO at no charge, send an email to receive-gfo-newsletter@aidspan.org. Subject line and text can be left blank.

Aidspan and the Global Fund maintain a positive working relationship, but have no formal connection, and Aidspan accepts no grants or fees from the Global Fund. In particular, therefore, the Global Fund bears no responsibility for the content of this Guide or of any other Aidspan publication.

Updates and corrections

Aidspan will publish an updated edition of this Guide during the first half of February 2004. All organizations that are featured in this Guide (or that are not, but wish to be) are invited to provide corrected or new data to Aidspan by the end of January 2004 for inclusion in the February edition. Instructions for doing so will be provided at www.aidspan.org/guides/submissions by 13 January 2004. The updated edition will be placed at www.aidspan.org/guides and its publication will be announced in GFO.

Translations

It is hoped to release French, Spanish and possibly Russian versions of each Guide within a month of the release of the English version. Information of any such release will be posted at www.aidspan.org/guides and in GFO. It is also hoped soon to publish French and Spanish versions of GFO.

Acknowledgements etc.

Aidspan thanks the following for their advice during the early stages of development of this Guide: Michael Adelhardt, Richard Burzynski, Jim Cashel, Kieran Daly, Doris D'Cruz-Grote, David Garmaise, Brad Herbert, Bill McGreevey, Kim Nichols, Tim Thomas and the many representatives of TA organizations who submitted data. Aidspan alone is responsible for any shortcomings.

Aidspan thanks its funders for the support they have provided for 2003-4 operations – the Open Society Institute, the Monument Trust, the John M. Lloyd Foundation, the MAC AIDS Fund, and three private donors.

Chapter 1: Introduction and Background

This Guide is intended to be useful to any country or organization that is considering applying to the Global Fund, or whose grant application has been approved by the Fund. It contains the first directory ever published of organizations and individuals that provide Global Fund-related technical assistance.

The Global Fund is a multi-billion-dollar international financing mechanism intended to help advance the fight against AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria by dramatically increasing the availability of funding for practical health initiatives. Funding is allocated to disease prevention, treatment, and care and support. Funded activities include both piloting of new and innovative programs and scaling up of existing interventions. The objective is to make it easier for affected countries to improve availability of health services, build national capacity, promote behavior change, conduct operational research, and gain access to critical health products, such as medicines to treat HIV, tuberculosis, and malaria.

With only a few exceptions, Global Fund grants are available only to programs designed and implemented by multi-sectoral partnerships in developing countries – partnerships defined and termed *Country Coordinating Mechanisms (CCMs)*¹. These partnerships can include government, non-government and community-based organizations, academic and educational organizations, people living with HIV, tuberculosis, or malaria and related patient and consumer groups, the private sector, faith-based organizations, and multilateral and bilateral development organizations.

During the past two years, the Global Fund has approved three 'rounds' of funding proposals. As of 31 December 2003, the Fund had committed a total of $2.05 billion, of which it had disbursed $232 million toward proposals approved in those first three rounds. And as of 9 January 2004, actual contributions into the Global Fund by all donors amounted to the $2.10 billion.

The Need for Global Fund-related technical assistance

This Guide seeks to serve three sets of readers:

- (a) Countries and organizations that plan to apply to the Global Fund in the Fourth or later Round of funding, and that seek TA to assist them with preparing their application. (Round 4 was launched on 10 January 2004, and applications must be submitted to the Fund by 5 April 2004.)
- (b) Countries and organizations that were approved to receive a Global Fund grant in Round 1, 2 or 3, and that seek TA in implementing their grant.
- (c) "Global Fund-related TA providers" (that is, organizations and individuals that seek to provide TA to applicants for and recipients of Global Fund grants) that wish to be aware of and possibly share ideas with other TA providers.

During 2004, the Global Fund will approve Round 4 grants, and also begin approving renewals of Round 1 grants as these grants complete their second year. This will place a considerable financial burden on the Fund unless donor countries significantly increase their funding commitments.

Therefore Round 4 may be the last chance for some time for countries to submit new proposals. Although the Global Fund has awarded grants to more than 100 countries, many eligible countries have never received any funding from the Global Fund – either because they did not apply, or because their applications did not succeed. These include at least eight sub-Saharan African countries, at least five countries in Latin America and the Caribbean, at least five countries from among the Baltic states and the Balkans, and at least ten countries in Asia and the Pacific Islands.

Furthermore, between Round 2 and Round 3, there was an increase in the percentage of proposals deemed ineligible for funding by the Global Fund's Technical Review Panel (TRP), and an overall decrease in the amount of funding recommended per round, indicating a possible need for TA to boost both the quantity and quality of funding requests.²

More than 100 countries around the world have had grant proposals approved by the Board of the Global Fund. There are several steps between grant approval by the Global Fund Board and ultimate receipt of grant funds by the applicant. These steps include an evaluation by the TRP of the grantee's response to the TRP's questions about the proposal; an assessment of the intended Principal Recipient (PR) and of its plans; and final grant contract negotiations. The assessment of the Principal Recipient is extensive and, as outlined in a 150-page guidance document, includes assessment of institutional and programmatic capacity, financial and management systems, procurement and supply management ability, and capability for monitoring and evaluation. The effort to meet the high requirements of the Global Fund in these various areas is generating a significant demand for TA. (The forthcoming Aidspan Guide to Starting Implementation of a Global Fund, mentioned in the Preface above, is intended to provide assistance regarding these assessments.)

Forms of Global Fund-related technical assistance

Many types of organizations have already provided Global Fund-related TA to CCMs and other potential applicants in this process. These include:

- Multilateral agencies, such as WHO, UNDP, World Bank, ILO and UNAIDS.
- Bilateral development agencies, such as DFID, GTZ, USAID, the US CDC, and NORAD.
- In-country and international NGOs, from very large to very small.
- For-profit companies, including corporations contributing pro-bono resources, and corporations seeking to generate revenue from TA.
- Technically qualified individuals able to contribute expertise as volunteers or as paid staff and consultants.

“Global Fund-related TA” – a term used frequently in this Guide – includes all activities designed to assist CCMs, CCM member organizations, and non-CCM applicants to adequately meet Global Fund requirements. This definition can be further elaborated in three ways:

TA can vary according to what TA is provided, including:

- providing information tailored to the needs of the recipient
- providing skilled people – short-term or permanent staffing, consultants, experts, researchers, and project managers
- providing funding to support TA-related people and activities
- providing equipment, supplies, and space to support TA-related people and activities.

TA can vary by when the TA is provided, including:

- pre-proposal TA, to provide strategic guidance about whether to apply to the Global Fund, how a proposal or its underlying project might be structured, organizing and facilitating CCMs, identifying and structuring main parties (such as Principal Recipient, sub-recipients, and technical partners), and helping with initial proposal preparation

² Between Round 2 and Round 3, the percentage of eligible proposals recommended by the TRP went down from 43% to 39%, and the dollar value of the recommended proposals as a percentage of the dollar value of all eligible proposals went down from 41% to 34%. (See GFO Issue 13 at www.aidspan.org/gfo/archives/newsletter.) Contributory reasons might be that the countries most capable of submitting good applications had already done so; that these countries were not yet ready to submit applications for follow-up projects (or didn't realize that the Fund is very open to additional proposals being submitted long before earlier projects have been completed); and that some applicants simply didn't understand that the type of application they were submitting had almost no chance of being recommended by the TRP.

- proposal support, including help with writing and/or editing a Global Fund proposal that reflects technically sound program and budget plans, and that represents broad input from all the players represented on the country CCM.
- support after the Global Fund has approved the proposal, up to the point of final Global Fund grant negotiations and signature, to assist the CCM in responding to technical questions and to assist the CCM and Principal Recipient through the Principal Recipient assessment process.
- support once Global Fund grant funding is underway to help Principal Recipients, sub-recipients, CCMs, and intended program beneficiaries and consumers to ensure adequate implementation, outcomes, and impact of funded programs.

Finally, TA can vary according to the specialized nature of assistance provided, including

- general assistance, such as:
 - support in sponsoring and organizing meetings, such as meetings of CCMs, proposal-writing teams, and technical expert teams,
 - support for general document writing, editing, translation and production.
 - support for developing linkages, partnerships, and working relationships, such as ensuring the involvement of NGOs or improving the participatory and inclusive functioning of CCMs.
- assistance that is specific to potential Global Fund grants for disease prevention, health promotion, treatment and care, and health products supply and management, including:
 - provision of supporting data, such as country-specific epidemiological and clinical information about HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria that supports design of programs against these diseases.
 - support in developing and conducting needs assessments and operational research to prepare for Global Fund applications.
 - support in program design, including design of new innovation or pilot projects, and also including design of scale-up programs and national adaptation of successful pilot projects.
 - program planning, including detailed systems analysis and operations planning.
 - Design and integration of monitoring and evaluation plans, and establishment of coordination and reporting mechanisms.
 - budget and accounting support, including detailed program costing, and establishment of financial disbursement and reporting mechanisms.

Research methods in developing this Guide

Aidspan researched and wrote this Guide during an eight-week period from early November 2003 to early January 2004, following the Global Fund board decision that Round 4 would be launched on 10 January 2004.

Aidspan's outreach and consultation for this report included five broad phases:

- In early to mid November, development of the project in consultation with a range of experts and advisors (noted in the Preface section of this report). During this period, it became clear that there was no pre-existing directory of TA providers from which meaningful data could be extracted, and that therefore the Guide would have to be compiled completely from scratch.
- In late November, distribution of information about a 15-question survey in four languages to the 4,500 people around the world who receive GFO. (See text in Appendix 5.) Most people who then accessed the survey did so at Aidspan's web site, but other methods were offered to those who do not have web access.

- In early December, communication with up to 10,000 additional people through the distribution lists of the Global Health Council, GTZ, the International AIDS Economics Network (IAEN), ICASO, the International HIV/AIDS Alliance, NMAC, and more.
- In mid-December, further outreach to TA providers based on an analysis of responses received by the original December 12 survey deadline.
- In early January, data confirmation with those who had responded to the survey.

Notwithstanding this outreach, Aidsplan acknowledges that this Guide probably excludes a number of the following types of TA provider:

- Those providers without access to email during December 2003.
- Those who weren't on any of the distribution lists we used
- Those who operate in languages other than English, French, Spanish and Russian (the four languages used in the survey and the contact letter).
- Those who weren't ready as of December to declare their availability to provide TA.
- Those based in a single country who are already in contact with the CCM in that country and do not aspire to providing Fund-related TA in other countries.
- Those government agencies and other large TA providers whose decision-making processes were too slow to enable them to respond in time to the survey.

In cases where large organizations have operating units in multiple countries, Aidsplan sometimes received responses from several of these units. Aidsplan then sought and obtained agreement on a single listing to represent the entire global operations of each such organization.

Aidsplan edited survey responses only for clarity and formatting purposes. Aidsplan therefore makes no claims regarding the accuracy of each TA provider's claims and descriptions listed here.

As discussed in the Preface, Aidsplan plans to publish an updated version of this Guide in February.

Chapter 2: An Overview of the TA providers Listed in this Guide

This Guide lists contact information and descriptive text regarding 170 Global Fund-related TA providers. Of these, 135 are organizations and 35 are technically-qualified individuals. Throughout this Guide, these have been organized into twelve categories, as follows:

- Category A1: 9 Multilateral agencies claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category A2: 1 Multilateral agency NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category B1: 9 Government organizations claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category B2: 3 Government organizations NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category C1: 15 Large NGOs/companies/etc. claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category C2: 4 Large NGOs/companies/etc. NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category D1: 42 Medium NGOs/companies/etc. claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category D2: 22 Medium NGOs/companies/etc. NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category E1: 12 Small NGOs/companies/etc. claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category E2: 18 Small NGOs/companies/etc. NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category F1: 18 Individuals claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category F2: 17 Individuals NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience

"Large" organizations are ones that say they have at least 50 staff available to provide Fund-related TA. "Medium" means 5 to 49 such staff, and "Small" means under 5.

The continents and countries in which the 170 TA providers have their primary base of operations are:

Continents:
Africa	25	Australasia	1	Western Europe	40	Latin America	8
Asia	9	Eastern Europe	3	International	18	North America	66

Countries:
Argentina	2	Finland	1	Liberia	1	Spain	1

China	2	India	4	Nigeria	3	Ukraine	1
Croatia	1	International	18	Norway	1	USA	66
Denmark	1	Italy	3	Philippines	1	Zambia	1
Dominican Republic	1	Kenya	4	South Africa	7	Zimbabwe	1

Chapter 3: How to Use this Guide

Starting on page 97 are appendices that provide indexes of the 170 TA providers, listing them (a) alphabetically, (b) by global region in which they have provided Fund-related TA, (c) by country in which they are based, and (d) by language capacity.

Readers of this Guide who are seeking potential TA providers may wish to go through the following steps:

- Determine, arising from the discussion under "Forms of Global Fund-related technical assistance" in Chapter 1 above, the reasons why you seek a TA provider and what role you want the provider to play.
- Study all the listings in this Guide, to identify a shortlist of TA providers of interest to you.
- Conduct further research on these TA providers by studying their web sites, and, if possible, by getting advice about them from trusted experts and advisors.
- Contact the TA providers of interest by e-mail. In your e-mail, identify who you are and what your TA needs are. Let them know whether you are contacting just a few TA providers, or many. Then ask the TA provider questions such as the following:
 - Do you have TA experience and/or TA staff in my country and region?
 - Can you provide examples of your work that demonstrate your knowledge and experience related to our TA needs?
 - Have you previously conducted TA for Global Fund applicants or recipients? If so, who are they, and can you provide names of people who will serve as references? Can you provide names of other experts who will attest to the quality of your work?
 - Are you available for a TA project and/or partnership designed to meet our current needs? When would you be able to do the work?
 - Will you need payment? If so, on what terms? Might you be able to help us identify other partners who could pay for the TA costs?
 - Regardless of your availability and cost for a longer-term project, are you available at no charge in the short-term to help us define our TA needs and to clarify the terms of reference for a possible paid TA project?
 - If a TA partnership seems possible, how would be proceed? What would be the first steps? Would you be able to meet with us in person?
 - Who are all of the people available from your organization for TA; and for each of them, what is their expertise and accessibility (skills, experience, languages, availability, contact information, cost, ability to travel)?
 - When would we decide on a contract, and what are your contractual expectations?

Org. description: The U.S. Government response to AIDS globally is coordinated through the State Department's Office of the Global AIDS Coordinator. A key element to the U.S. strategy to address HIV/AIDS, TB and malaria is active support to the Global Fund. One way the U.S. Government supports the Global Fund's efforts is by providing TA, as requested, for both proposal development and project implementation. TA is provided mainly through the technical agencies in HHS, coordinated by the Office of Global Health Affairs, and USAID staff and Cooperating Agencies at both Country Mission and Headquarters levels.
Org. areas of TA expertise: In 2002 and 2003, Global Fund-related TA in all areas of expertise (i.e., for all interventions related to all three disease components) was provided by more than 120 U.S. government staff and Cooperating Agency Contractor and Grantee staff, working in more than 40 countries through USAID, HHS (CDC, NIH, HRSA), and the U.S. State Department. The U.S. provides TA for both proposal development and program implementation.
References available re Global Fund-related TA? Yes
Cost: For US government staff at country or headquarters levels, no salary, consulting or travel costs are normally involved. CCMs are encouraged to contact local USAID Mission personnel or in-country HHS staff with specific requests, which will be considered on a case by case basis. Global Fund proposals can include support for TA, which can be discussed with local U.S. government representatives or Cooperating Agency staff.

Appendix 4: Index of TA Providers by Language Capacity Other than English

This shows TA providers according to the languages they say their TA staff can use professionally. Thus, some TA providers are shown more than once.

Note: Every TA provider in this Guide except for one states that it has staff able to provide TA in English. Thus, a list of providers who can work in English is not provided here. For that, see the Table of Contents or Appendix 1.

Key:

- Category A1: 9 Multilateral agencies claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category A2: 1 Multilateral agency NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category B1: 9 Government organizations claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category B2: 3 Government organizations NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category C1: 15 Large NGOs/companies/etc. claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category C2: 4 Large NGOs/companies/etc. NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category D1: 42 Medium NGOs/companies/etc. claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category D2: 22 Medium NGOs/companies/etc. NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category E1: 12 Small NGOs/companies/etc. claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
 Category E2: 18 Small NGOs/companies/etc. NOT claiming Global Fund-related TA experience
- Category F1: 18 Individuals claiming Global Fund-related TA experience

Subject: [GFO Newsletter] Correction re Special letter re Technical Assistance to Global Fund applicants

En français, voyez ci-dessous / En Español, véase abajo / По-русски, см. ниже

Dear Colleague,

This is a special letter to subscribers to "Global Fund Observer" (GFO) and selected others regarding Aidspan's forthcoming "Guide to Obtaining Global-Fund-Related Technical Assistance."

I'm writing to ask whether you, OR anyone you are in contact with, is an actual or potential provider of Technical Assistance (TA) to countries or organizations applying for grants from the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria. If so, I would be very pleased if you/they would complete a survey of Global Fund TA providers.

This 15-question survey can be completed on-line in English, French, or Spanish at www.aidspan.org/survey. In case respondents prefer to download the survey, PDF versions of this survey in these three languages plus Russian can also be downloaded at www.aidspan.org/survey, to then be completed and returned as an attachment to an email to TAform@aidspan.org, or via fax to +1 (212) 208-2543.

If you are unable to access the web and would like to be sent the PDF file by email, please send an email to TA@aidspan.org, stating whether you wish to receive the English, French, Spanish or Russian version.

I am sending this letter to all TA providers that Aidspan has identified, and to many others (including all Country Coordinating Mechanisms and all subscribers to "Global Fund Observer") who could forward this letter to TA providers.

In January, based on the results of the survey, Aidspan will produce "A Guide to Obtaining Global-Fund-Related Technical Assistance." This will consist primarily of a directory of organizations, of all types and sizes, that have provided TA to applicants to the Global Fund during 2002-3, and/or that are available to do so in 2004.

The Global Fund will launch Round 4 on 10 January 2004, and will specify that completed applications must be submitted by early April. This may be the last round until at least 2005. Aidspan is producing this Guide in order to help potential Fund applicants, and winners of earlier grants, to identify potential providers of TA. This, we hope, will lead to more and better applications to the Fund, and to grants being more successfully implemented.

Further information about the Global Fund can be found at www.theglobalfund.org. Further information about Aidspan and its publications, including Global Fund Observer (GFO), can be found at www.aidspan.org. Aidspan has a cordial working relationship with staff of the Fund, with whom this survey has been discussed; but Aidspan is completely independent of the Fund and is solely responsible for this survey and Guide. Aidspan is also working on three other Guides: "A Guide to Applying to the Global Fund," "A Guide to Starting Implementation of a Global Fund Grant," and "A Guide to Building and Running an Effective CCM." Publication of these will be announced in GFO. (To subscribe to GFO, see www.aidspan.org/gfo.)

If you and your organization are a current or potential provider of Global-Fund-related TA, please complete the survey. If you are not a provider of Fund-related TA but you know one or more organizations that are, please forward this email to them, or send an email to TA@aidspan.org naming the organization(s), contact people and preferred language (English, French, Spanish, Russian) so that we can contact them directly.

Surveys must be completed by Friday 12 December 2003, preferably on-line, or sent to Aidspan as described above. Any questions should be sent to Bernard Rivers of Aidspan at rivers@aidspan.org, telephone +1(212) 662-6800.

Sincerely,

Bernard Rivers
Executive Director, Aidspan, and editor of Aidspan's Global Fund Observer

PS If you do not wish to receive Global Fund Observer in the future, please reply with "Unsubscribe" in the Subject line.

Summary of this email in French, Spanish and Russian:

Cher(ère) collègue,

En janvier 2004, Aidspan publiera un document intitulé Un guide pour obtenir de l'assistance technique (l'A.T.) liée au Fonds mondial, qui inclura un répertoire d'organismes de divers types et tailles qui ont fourni de l'A.T. à d'autres pour leurs propositions au Fonds mondial en 2002-2003, et/ou qui sont disponibles à cet effet en 2004.

Si vous et votre organisme êtes un fournisseur actuel ou potentiel d'A.T. liée au Fonds mondial, prière de répondre au sondage sur Internet à www.aidspan.org/survey. Si vous n'êtes pas un fournisseur d'A.T. liée au Fonds mondial mais connaissez un ou des organismes qui le sont, veuillez leur relayer cette lettre.

Meilleures salutations et merci.

Estimados colegas,

En Enero 2004, Aidspan elaborará una Guía para Obtener Asistencia Técnica relacionada con el Fondo Mundial. Esta guía consistirá primordialmente en un directorio de organizaciones, de todo tipo y tamaño, que han dado AT a solicitantes del Fondo Mundial durante el 2002-3 y que estén disponibles para hacerlo en el 2004.

Si usted y/o su organización son actualmente, o serán potencialmente, proveedores de AT relacionada con el Fondo Mundial, por favor complete una encuesta de Internet disponible en la siguiente dirección www.aidspan.org/survey. Si usted no es un proveedor de AT relacionada con el Fondo Mundial pero conoce una o más organizaciones que si lo son, por favor reenvíe esta carta a ellos.

Atentamente y gracias.

Уважаемые коллеги!

В январе 2004 г. Aidspan выпустит «Справочное руководство по получению технического содействия в рамках деятельности Глобального фонда». В первую очередь, справочник будет включать в себя список разных организаций, больших и малых, которые уже предоставляли техническое содействие направившим заявки на получение средств из Глобального фонда в 2002 – 2003 г.г., и (или) смогут оказывать содействие в 2004 г.

Пожалуйста, нажмите здесь, www.aidspan.org/survey, чтобы загрузить PDF – документ на русском языке. Вы можете заполнить его позднее и отправить нам по электронной почте, или факсу

Искренне Ваш.
